We are a dynamic duo who met at open day in 2017, and have since bonded over our shared obscure humour and the ups and downs of life on the Isis.

We are passionate about having schemes in place at St Anne's to ensure that College knows about and acts on any problems students may have, so that they are better equipped to deal with Oxford life, and that everyone feels represented and looked after. Without correct welfare networks, being an Oxford student can become stressful and isolating; we are committed to making it manageable and fun.

Our ideas for welfare:

• Continue with welfare teas. We recognise that snacks are always welcome; we’ll have more seating and the usual opportunity to voice any concerns.

• Continue with the ‘text-a-chocolate’ scheme with added options for vegans and seasonal treats.

• Wellbeing drop-ins. We will set aside certain hours of the week during which one of us will be available to chat in a private space.

• Maintain and expand the peer support network, so everyone feels that they have access to a friendly face who has time to chat.

• Representation. We understand the value of working with other reps and are committed to organising events and activities with other branches of the JCR, such as discussion groups or drop-ins for racial minorities, people living with disabilities and the LGBT community.

• Mindfulness sessions. These could take place in the JCR or in the gym to wind down from Zumba classes.

• Self-care. We want to help students maintain basic self-care habits. We want to ensure that things like down time, making sure you have that long awaited shower and a healthy sleep schedule are not sacrificed to the demands of the Oxford system.

What qualifies us for the role:

• We are approachable and always up for a chat.
• We are organised.
• We know the importance of welfare and are keen to pass on the benefits to other Stanners.
• We are energetic and have a lot of love to give.
• We have experience working with other young people.
• In addition to the ideas we have, we will listen to yours above all else. You are our priority.

Love Nick and Ruby! xxx
