Master of Communication and Development

I am a second-year Biochemist and would love to be your Alumnae and Comms Officer! Proving my communication skills, I have written and sub-edited for the Oxford Scientist magazine for the past year and currently work as one of their News Correspondents. In addition, I was one of the Events Officers for Oxford Pink Week, where I organised events and maintained regular communication with speakers and charity representatives, helped with the running of our Social Media, designed posts using Canva and came up with creative ideas on how to engage the student population and wider community in fundraising.
